GRAND EXHIBITION.

Lee Bichardson, A. M. Johnson and Three Local Riders Please Saturday Audieners

For two or three weeks it had been announced that Lee Richardson, the premier fancy bicyclist of America, would give exhibitions in this city on Saturday afternoon and evening, and many who had heard or read of this wonderful young expert were anxious to witness his performances. The afternoon performance was not well attended, but the program was carried out as advertised, except that the boys' bicycle race failed to fill and had to be declared off. In the evening an audience of about five hundred people assembled at Central City Opera House. The performance commenced at about half-past eight, but in the meantime all present were kept interested with the excellent music as furnished by the Amphion band. The first on the program was a three mile bicycle race between W. F. Dewey, W. B. McDonald and Harry Welty, to be run in three heats. The course was around the hall, just 24 laps to the mile, and proved most exciting from start to fin-During the first heat, McDonald fell twice, but quickly remounted and escaped without injury. In the next heats, all had experience in tumbling, and notwithstanding that Dewey had one of his lower limbs quite badly scratched, he showed no signs of weakening. Dewey won the first two heats in 5:40 and 5:381, with Welty second and McDonald third. Welty took the third heat, Dewey second and McDonald third; time, 5:28.

Then came A. M. Johnson with his performances as drum major, in which he is truly an expert. His feats with the baton are of the best, and brought torth merited applause, he being obliged to respond to a hearty encore.

The last on the program came Lee Richardson, and it is safe to say that there were few among the audience who expected to see as fine a performance as was given by this "young wonder on a wheel." He is a most graceful young man, and seems as much at home on a bicycle, whether standing erect on the saddle, shooting along on one wheel, riding and jumping from one side to the other, etc., as the average individual does when scated in a comfortable arm chair. His performances are truly-wonderful, as well as extremely difficult at times, and every person was kent interested. from the moment he made his appearance. He, also, was called out for a second performance. Master Richardson holds the world's record for fancy riding, as well as backward riding. He came here upon invitation of . A. Clock, cashier at the Central freight depot, who is his uncle, and to the latter's untiring work is due much of the pleasure experienced by all present, although the performance was not a financial success. Lee is spending the week here.

Forum Club Meeting.

The next meeting of the Forum Club will be held at the residence of W. B. Buckingham, next Friday evening, when W. O. Lamoreux will present a paper. His subject will be, "The City Water Supply," and as the speaker is thoroughly familiar with water, in his position as manager of the water company, the paper will be interesting. All interested are invited to be present.

Thrown From a Wagon.

Z. Butterfield, who resides just across the Plover river, east of the city, met with a painful accident one week ago last Saturday night. The evening was quite dark, and he was driving down the hill with his brother, Chartie, coming to town. The latter held the reins, when suddenly the wheel struck a stump, throwing Zimri headlong to the ground. The rear wheel of the wagon passed over his side and back, his cap was cut by coming in contact with a root, and one of his thumbs was so badly strained that he hasn't been able to use that member since.

Arrested at Stratford. On the 4th of last November,

Anton Brill, a resident of this city, made an attempt to commit rape on the person of a thirteen year old; daughter of Jos. Straub, in the town Eau Picine, so it is charged. Before he could be arrested, Brill, who is a married man, left for parts unknown. Recently, however, Sheriff Leahy learned that Brill was at work in a saw mill at Stratford, Marathon county, and accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Polabitski he went up, yesterhim to the city and placing him in jail last evening. Straub has been this afternoon or tomorrow.

Wanted a Name.

Immediately north and west of what is known as Woodland Park, is another island of about five acres, covered with a dense growth of maple, pine and poplar trees, both large and small. This island is owned by J. A. Ennor, who desires an appropriate name for this beautiful spot of nature, and he will give a reward of $5.00 to the person who sends him the said name on or before Feb. 15th, 1896, on which date all letters will be opened and the reward justly made. This competition is open to the world. Address J. A. Ennor, Stevens Point.

For Judge Webb.

Nomination papers were circulated in this city, yesterday, asking Judge didate at the coming spring election for the position of judge of the 7th judicial circuit, and were freely signed by bar, business men and all to whom they were presented. The present term of Judge Webb expires next January. No other candidates for the judgeship have been heard of, and elected without opposition, which is Going to Hurley.

N. J. Knope, a well known young tailor of this city, and who has been in business on Strong's avenue of late, [will leave for Hurley, Thursday morning where be will establish himself in the merchant tailoring business. He believes there is a good opening in that city, which is now recovering from the panic of the past few years, and has but one firstclass tailoring establishment. Mr. Knope's family will remain in Stevens Point for the present, but will probably follow him in the early spring.

Had a Grand Time.

The first of a series of three leap year parties, given by a number of our young ladies, took place at Foresters Hall, last Friday evening, and to say that it was a grand social success, is but mildly expressing the universal opinion of every gentleman attending. There were some twenty-five couples present, and Mesdames N. A. Week, Rivers, Gilchrist, Ball and E. J. Pfiffner and Rounds acted as chap-The affair was in charge of the ladies throughout, they escorting their partners to the hall, chosing whom they wished to dance with each time, and even paying the bills. It will long be remembered by each and everyone present. The next two parties will take place on Friday evenings, Feb. 7th and 14th.

An Evening Reception. Nearly three hundred invitations were sent out by Mrs. Wm. Atwell, Mrs. Chas. Miltimore, Mrs. Benj. Bowen and Mrs. Louis Seeger to attend the reception given by them residence was handsomely decorated, The ladies Shannon, Mrs. G. W. Martin and Atwell received at the door. Those Chas. Hayden, the Misses Edna Saxton, Harriet Holmes, Kate Ball, Louise Vosburgh, Kittle Hyde and Georgia Boyington, and the Maudolin orchestra furnished music.

The party cut a hole through the door large enough to allow his hand to pass through, but either could not remove the fasting or was frightened away, and went out of the back door. Monday morning the door was made doubly secure.

Judge Murat Decides.

The case brought some time since by the minor heirs of C. A. Sherman against their grandfather, S. A. Sherman, as guardian, was decided by Judge Murat last Friday. There are three minor heirs, Walter, Frank and James, and the court holds that the guardian took them to his home, brother, Patrick Taffe, gives THE at the home of the first named lady, treated them as his children, used their money for himself and did not make an annual report as required by was foreman in the Dayton boiler but few regrets were received. Dedicated the New Hall.

The new Eintrachts Hall in Atwell's block, on Strong's avenue, was informaily dedicated on Sunday evening, most of the members and their wives being present. Several songs were sung, and the occasion was rendered more enjoyable by several solos and duetts on the piano and violin by Prof. Schidlo, of this city, and Prof. Schultze, of Portage. A long table had been arranged in the center of the hall, and while all were seated around this. J. H. Gerlich acted as toastfor departure. The society now has

Work Upon Two Handson Structures to be Commenced in the Early Spring.

Point or hinder the erection of new buildings, and judging from the outlook today, next season will be one of unusual activity in this line. C. C. Buck, the Green Bay architect, has prepared plans for John Martini's plans and specifications for a new block to be erected by John O. Johnsen. The wooden structure, known as Johnsen's Hall, damaged by fire some very commodious and well arranged five weeks ago, is now being moved to the corner of Third and Clark streets, where it will be remodeled and fitted up for business purposes. Mr. Johnsen's new block will be a pride and orgament to the city, and an honor and monument to the enterprise and progress of its veteran and esteemed owner. The frame building that has stood at the northwest corner of Main street and public square so many years, might have clently to get up or make any outcry been repaired, but Mr. Johnsen conor investigation. The building will be 34x62 feet, two stories high, and of solid brick. The preliminary drawings show a handsome block, of modern design, just what is required to set off that valuable corner. From an architectural point of view, it will be outdone by none. Langenberg's red brick will be used, and ornamental terra cotta trimmings will be selected to match. There will be a double basement beneath the building, running the entire length, and the first floor will be divided into two stores, one 17x62 and the other 15x62. After Big Game.

There has been considerable petty thieving about the east and south parts of the city of late, and some that cannot be termed petty. One family was awakened a few nights ago by an uproar on the part of their hogs, dragged it as far as the gate, but were frightened and ran away. Last week a cow belonging to other parties suddenly became missing. Detectives and officers were notified, and suspicion pointing to one individual, he was advised to see that the The animl was returned.

OLD YOUNG WOMEN.

THERE HAS BEEN A CHANGE, AND THEY ARE HAVING THEIR DAY,

Her Field Is No Longer Limited to Daraing and Knitting - The Test of Age Lies In the Heart-Women Who Live and Those Who Simply Exist.

Women hate to grow old. This statement is not a platitude, for, however often it may be made, its truth and pathos dignify it, and it rises to the height of an aphorism. It is well in this moment to call attention to the fact that old women are becoming fashlouable—that is, the old young women, for there are old young ones as well as young old ones, and you find them everywhere you go. It is a time defying idea to say-that old women are the fashion, but it is an immensely philosophical, highly popular and eminently comforting fact, just the same. Everything comes to him-and to her-who knows how to wait, and at last fashion has taken a stroll in the direction of the old woman.

Dame Fashion is old herself, and she believes in the old woman. When the aptique craze won a foothold in the world, it reached a point more important than bric-a brac and prayer rugs. It dragged many a woman from the corner and cast aside the knitting work and darning, and forthwith she began to delve into the storehouse of her experience, and, behold! grandmother became the most interesting member of the family The antique craze did this. It helped to create for her the widest field of experience that she had ever known. Her reserve fund of wisdom never fails her. There is work in this field for her to do, and she has the capital for the work. That was two generations ago, and the old women have been growing fewer ever since. The species will soon become utterly extinct.

The modern woman who is old in years has no time to devote to the chimney corner, no time for knitting work and avocations which used to go hand in hand with it. Not a bit of it. There are a host of other things for her to do now, and she leaves the knitting and the darning and other things of the kind to some one else, and I am in doubt if she even troubles herself to wonder who it is that does it

Growing old is very much like going west. It all depends upon the standard of observation. Chicago is "west" until you live in Chicago, and then Denver becomes "west," Denver points to the peaks of the Sierras as "west," but when you arrive there even they refute the charge. And so it is with old age Thirty looks superannuated to a child, and 60 seems on the verge of the grave to the man of 80. but he finds when he reaches 60 that he is just as young as he ever was in every feeling of his heart, and the heart is where the test lies. It isn't in the logs, or in the arms, or in the teeth, or in the voice, or in the ability to carry heavy weights and to run up stairs two steps at a time, nelther is it in the color of the hair, or the sprightliness of the walk, or in the glasses on the nose It's in the heart!

There is nothing like living among young people if you want to keep young You sort of eatch their laugh, and you find yourself listoning with breathless interest to their adventures and heartily wishing that you had been there to help them in their mischief That is what keeps you young.

Ordinarily a woman begins to see at 28, and at 35 she begins to live. What has she done before that? Ask yourself. When she reaches the latter age, the pathway of her life widons, and the fruit hangs where she can reach it, and she has reached the point in her existence where she appreclates the picking

Some women never see, and some women never live! "We live in deeds, not justa. It was the general opinion of those years," and no woman has ever lived who has not felt her sympathies enlarge and | lecting scientific data that the ashes were expand and reach out toward humanity when she passed the 80 mark in her life If she has failed to appreciate this, she has not lived; she has only existed. No woman has lived whose sympathies have not developed by attrition Growth is suffering, and suffering is development

Who does not love the woman who, though old in years, is still young in heart? The one who can enter into all the pleasures and delights that the younger ones around her enjoy? The one who is ready to hear about everything that portains to youth, and who always has that sort of kindly sympathy which is born of gouulne

There is one such in your own community, and you go to her semetimes, and you love to watch the sparkle in her eyes while she listens to the flood of eyents that you tell her about and which would ordinarily interest only one of your young friends You went to her because you knew that she would not only listen, but that she would be delighted to hear all that you had to tell

Never has the popularity of women of years been attested to with greater intensity than in the birthday celebration of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, when the platform of the Metropolitan Opera House was crowded with women speakers whose heads were crowned with white hair, but whose bright eyes only smiled in deflauce at its too early coming -Haryot Holt Cahoon in New York Recorder

Evenings In the Home.

There is no happier, cozier picture of home life than a little family group gathered about the evening lump while some momber of it it ids aloud. These evening readings can be made educational and doveloping in many ways, which the ready feminine mind, eager for improvement, will easily devise. A good plan is to provide a different kind of reading for each week. For the flist week suppose that a good historical novel bu selected. For the second a book of trivol and explorations or of good essiys. For the third, a collection of fine old hallals. Children especial ly love billids. The mother and sister can make the evening hour one of unalloyed delight by reading these aloud

Beautiful Gowns.

Mrs Craigie, 'John Oliver Hobbes," the English novelist of American birth, confesses to a fondness for dress "I like beautiful gowns, just as I like beautiful surroundings of any sort," she says. She also sensibly thinks that limited means need not preclude tasteful and becoming "It does not cost any more to dress in good taste, and with a due regard to neatness, than it does to wear gowns in a slovenly way," is her dictum.

IN A SLEEPING CAR.

The Mistakes Made Through a Change of Berths Made Late at Night.

"My friend and I had secured two lower serths opposite each other. He was not a smoker, so he concluded to tumble in, while I went forward to the smoking compartment for a cigar before I followed his example. Possibly I found the game of cards which was in progress between two commercial travelors interesting, or else the clear was more soothing than usual. but, however it was, I remained longer than I had intended.

"In the meantime we had made a stop and taken on a couple of passengers, an aged couple of dignified and aristocratic appearance. Every lower borth was taken and over half of the uppers, so the worthy pair were not jubilant over the prospect of climbing into an upper borth, and their objections were plainly audible to others than the porter. At last that sable gallant, driven to his wits' end, came in to where sat placidly smoking, apparently unconscious of what had been going on in the car. With a deprecating air he approached and asked me if I would exchange my lower berth for an upper in favor of the old people. I readily assented, and the couple, grateful and contented, immediately took possession, and judging from the due of discordant vocal sounds which soon emanated from 'lower 10' they had fallen into peaceful slumber

"In the meantime my friend, being a heavy sleeper, was quite unconscious of the change that had been made in the arrangements. So, early in the morning, he crawled out and proceeded to get his shoes from under the borth, sitting upon the edge of the bed while he leisurely drew on one shoe Then he began to think I had enjoyed myself undisturbed quite long enough and commenced to shake the ourtains and call to me to get up. Meeting with no response, he concluded to make it more effectual, so he calmly drew aside the curtains, noticing nothing unusual in the dim light, and gave several resounding slaps with the remaining shoe upon the most obvious portion of the anatomy. At the same time he called, 'Come, aren't you ever going to get up? "For answer several feminine shricks rent the air, while two wrathful faces rose up and confronted my friend, who shrank back aghast Every head popped out between the curtains, my own included; but, quickly grasping the situation, I sank back, convulsed. In the moantime the porter had appeared, and in due course of time, and with many explanations, succeeded in pacifying the aged couple."—Rochester Democrat.

A Queer Shower of Ashes.

At about 10 30 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 12, 1890, the citizens of the state of Guanajuata, Mexico, witnessed a very peculiar phenomenon, and one which caused the majority of the population to repair to the churches and pray to be saved from the wrath to come. On the day mentioned the sky was perfectly clear, and there was not a breath of air stirring. All of a sudden it was noticed that the atmosphere took on a curious, ghastly aspect, and immediately after a shower of almost pure white ashes was rained down upon all exposed objects. The phenomenon was more noticeable in the city of Guanajuata and vicinity than in any other part of the state named above, and almost the entire population sought the churches and prayed earnestly to be saved from destruction. At times during the progress of this peculiar "storm" the fall of the white substance from the sky was very thick, and those who had seen snowsterms at the north declared that the resemblance be-tween the two was very similar. The buildings, streets, trees and people (those who did not seek shelter) were literally covered with ashes at the conclusion of the peculiar storm As noted above, the storm extended throughout the state of Guanawho observed the fall with an eye to colwafted by an upper, northeasterly current of air across hundreds of miles of country from the volcano of Columa, which was at that time in a state of active eruption -St. Louis Republic.

Not a Barber.

When the professor came into the club, his crudite countenance was ornamented at several points with sticking plaster, and there was a general inquiry among his friends as to what was the matter "Razor," said the professor briefly. "Great Caesar! Where did you get shaved?" asked young Rounder sympa thetically

"It's a strange thing," said the pro fessor "I was shaved this morning by a man who really is, I suppose, a little above being a barber I know of my own knowledge that he is an alumnus of one of the leading American colleges, that he studied in Heidelberg afterward and spent several years in other foreign educational centers I know, also of my own knowledge, that he has contributed scientifle articles to our best magazines, and has numbered among his intimate friends mon of the highest social and scientific standing in Europe and America And yet," sollloquized the professor, "he can't shave a man decent-

"By Jove" exclaimed young Rounder in astonishment "What is he a bather for, with all those accomplishments?' Oh, he isn't a barber," said the pro-fessor, yawning "You see, I shaved myself this morning "-New York Journal

London Postofflee Cats.

It may not be generally known that iconsiderable sum of money for cuts' ment appears annually as an item in the post office estimates. He Discovered Fisk.

The late Elen Jerdan of Roston was not only the friend in need of Richard Mansfield and the early patron of Nordica, but also the "discoverer" of the celebrated Jim Fisk, Jr, who came to the mer-chant's store to replenish his puddler's stock and made so good an impression on the head of the house that he was engaged as a clerk. Fisk was soon in receipt of the highest salary paid by the establishmens and eventually became a partner.

It is the privilege of posterity to set matters right between those antagonists who, by their rivalry for greatness, divided n whole age -Addison.

In 1880 the number of cotton factories in this country was 756. In 1890 it was 904, nearly half of the increase being in the southern states.

A Theory of the Origin of a Designation Somethaes Applied to the Irish.

Some time ago we asked why long ago, as well as today, Irishmen were called Greeks. A correspondent writes as follows in answer:

arch, set out with a considerable band of followers in search of adventure. They reached Egypt, and finding the king of that country at war with a neighboring power they offered their services. Egypt prevailed, largely owing to the skill and courage of Miletus, and the king bestowed on him the hand of the Princess Scota, his daughter, in marriage. After a lapse of some years the Greek prince and his followers set out in quest of adventure a second time, and landing in Spain subdued the inhabitants very easily. Miletus became king, and after his death his son, Heber, made a voyage to Ireland, and conquering the country called it Hebernia. Later he subdued the western islands of ancient Caledonia and named them Hebrides, also in honor of himself. Finally the mainland in the west was annexed and named Scotland, in honor of his mother,

"This is how the Irish come to be called Greeks and Milesians, in my opinion. Now, there are variations of this legend and one is just as historically accurate as the other. A parallel instance is this famous discovery of Dr. Anderson:

"But earnest seekers after truth have discovered that the ancient records and archives of Ireland show clearly that Jeremiah escaped from Egypt with the youngest daughter of King Zedekiah, after the conquest of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and with her and others took ship and finally reached Ireland in safety, and that there at the ancient city of Tara he did build and plan successfully, and there can be no doubt that was patterned from, if it was not the veritable harp of Israel's sweet psalmist, King David "-Boston Journal.

Moral Ideas.

Almost every form and variety of human crime is to be found among animals. Cases of theft are noticed among bees. Buchner, in his "Psychic Life of Animals," speaks of thievish bees which, in order to save themselves the trouble of masses, kill the sentinols and the inhabitants, rob the hives and carry off the prodescription they acquire a taste for robbery and violence They recruit whole companies, which get more and more numer ous, and finally they form regular colonies

But it is a still more curious fact that these brigand bees can be produced artificially by giving working bees a mixture of honey and brandy to drink. The bees soon acquire a taste for this beverage. which has the same disastrous effects upon them as upon men. They become ill disposed and irritable and lose all desire to work, and finally, when they begin to feel hungry, they attack and plunder the well supplied hives There is one variety of bees — the sphecodes—which lives exclusively upon plunder According to Marchall, this variety is formed of individuals of the halyetes species, whose organs of hidification were defective, and which have gradually developed into a separate variety, living almost exclusively by plunder. They may thus be said to be an example of innate and organic criminality among insects, and they represent what Professor Lombrosso calls the born criminals—that is, individuals which are led to crime by their own organic constitution -Forum.

Imatra Waterfall In Finland. Finland, which was visited. Mr. Gladstone during one of his Scandinavian tours, promises to become a source of very large profit to the revenues of the imperial grand duchy. The ever increasing crowd of summer and autumn tourists line of railway constructed for their convenience and accommodation. The so called Historical hatel, which stands above the Imatra, as well as the many flourishing settlements on the Saima canal, exist almost entirely on the yearly influx of visitors from all parts of Europe. A Russian company is now being organized for exploiting the inherent force of this magnificent cascade as an electrical motor network of wires will transmit the motor power of the tumbling and foaming waters of Imatra in various directions, even as far as the gloomy and misty Petropolis. The new company desires to obtain a driv ing force of 20,000 horsepower, and as the Finnish executive values each single horsepower at 500 riksmarks the necessary cap ital for working the enterprise will be 13, 500,000 of that currency The lesses will pay for their acquired force by a fixed percentage on the gross capital. It is stated that 20,000 horsepower represents only one-sixth of the colossal force of the Finnish Niagara -London News.

In modern warfare the destruction of churches and cathedral, as well as of libraries and public buildings has been very common. During the devastation of the Palatinate by the French all cathedrals and churches were ruthlessly plundered and destroyed, even the tembs of the em perors at Spiers being pillaged and demolished In 1814 our capitel, at Washington, the president's house and other pub he buildings were burned by the British. According to Edwards' "Germans In France," at the bombardment of Strasburg by the Gormans not only did they purposely direct their fire on the cathedral and library, but also fired on the firemen and fire engines endeavoring to put out the conflagration

The novel spectacle of a steamer being stoked with bank notes was recently witnessed at a Mediterrane in port Forty five sacks of the apparently valuable paper were tossed into the furnace of the vessel's boiler under the longing eyes of the stok ors, who stood restively by with an evidently burning desire to possess themselves of at least a handful of that which they somewhat inelegantly styled 'rum fuel.' The notes were cauceled documents of the Bank of Algiers, whose manager superintended the operation of their absolute

STORIES OF GRANT.

TWO WHICH ILLUSTRATE THE HU-MOROUS SIDE OF HIS CHARACTER.

Teaching a Lesson to an Officer Who Was Afraid of the Rain and the Mud-Lioutenant Wickfield of the Indiana Cavalry and the Arkansas Pumpkin Pic.

When General Grant's headquarters were at Culpeper, an officer attached to the quartermaster's department, who was stationed some half dozen miles away, desired to consult him on some business that ' he deemed of importance. The day was exceedingly rainy, and the roads were knee deep in mud, and to avoid undue exposure to the weather the officer-who was one of the old regime, with a full appreciation of the dignity of his rank-ordered up a close carriage, and, as it was likely that night would come on before he could return, had the lamps trimmed and hung out on either side of the driver's seat. Then, with an escort of 19 cavalrymen, he set out for headquarters, happy in the thought that he was proof against the fast nary looking horseman, attended by only a single orderly, and was about to page him without notice, when he suddenly recognized him to be the lieutenant general, who, in spite of the rain, was making his usual round of the army, attended by his usual slender escort. To descend from his carriage and salute his chief was but the work of a moment, but the general, irritated by the style and pretension of the officer, was in no hurry to see him regain the shelter of his carriage. "Walk along with me a little," said the general. "I want to talk with you." With polished boots and unexceptionable kids, Mr. Quartermaster did as he was bidden, and, with a touch of grimness, the general led him through the muddlest part of the road and did not release him until he was wet to the skin—as wet as was the general himself. Then he dismissed him with a few curt remarks which were not overheard by the orderly. Their purport, however, was conjectured by the general's staff, for they observed that the officer never again appeared at headquarters in a close carriage.

Another amusing anecdote was related to me by one of General Grant's staff officers. The incident occurred early in the war, when he was in command of an expedition against the Confederates in southwestern Arkansas. He was on a march of more than 100 miles, and the greater part of the way through a wilderness entirely destitute of supplies for man or horse. The suffering of the soldiers was very great. during the first two days of the march. Uncultivated real estate could not be confiscated, and not a porker, nor a chicken, nor even an ear of corn was anywhere vis-ible. On the third day, however, affairs began to look more hopeful, for a few isolated dwellings and small patches of ground were here and there to be seen in a state of partial cultivation.

On that day Lieutenant Wickfield of an Indiana cavalry regiment commanded the advance guard of eight mounted men. About noon he came upon a small farmhouse, whose outward appearance indicated there might be some food upon the premises. Halting his squad, he dismounted, and with two of his subordinate officers entered the dwelling. Grant's fame had already gone through all that country, and it occurred to the lieutenant that, by representing himself to be the general, he Therefore, assuming a stately demeanor, he accosted the mistress of the house with a demand for food for himself and his staff. To her inquiry as to who he was he answered, "Brigadier General Grant," and at the sound of that name all the members of the family present flew about with wonderful alacrity, serving up-all they had in the house, with profuse expressions of loyalty. They were all women, the men being away with the body of Confederates that Grant was pursuing. The lieutenant and his squad feasted to their hearts' content add then demanded what was to pay. "Nothing," was the prompt reply of the mistress of the house, protesting that as she was a loyal woman she could not think of accepting pay from the defenders of the country. With this Lieutenant Wickfield and his "staff" went on their way rejoic-

the promise. Then Grant rode on some 15 miles to where the army was to go into camp for the night. There the various regiments were notified of a full parade at 6:30, to which the officers were to see that all the men attended. This was so unusual a thing with a force on the march that it created a decided sensation, many supposing the enemy was upon them. The parade was formed ten columns deep, and nearly a quarter of a mile in length, and after the usual coromonies the assistant adjutant general read the following order:

turn with an escort of 100 cavalry and eat that U. S. GRANT, Brigadier General, Commanding.

At 7 o'clock the lieutenant filed out of camp with his 100 men amid the cheers of the entire army. The escort returned to camp about midnight, reporting that Wickfield had eaten the whole pie and had appeared to relish it.—James R. Gilmore (Edmund Kirke) in New York Sun.

Battles In the Sea.

Fights between sharks and porpoises are said to be common in the waters around the Florida keys, and the fishermen thereshout declare that the perpoise always Wins and sends the shark, which usually begins the fight, scurrying away. The shark has to turn on its side to bite, and the nimble porpoise easily keeps out of reach of its snapping jaws and then jumps in and deals the shark tremendous sings with its tail.

ALLEN THOMAS. high place he now occupies, but he was appointed by President Cleveland because of his excellent record as consul at La Guayra, the seaport of Caracas, the capital of Venezuela He was named for the office last June and his nomination was very recently confirmed by the United States senate Minister Thomas was born in Maryland and is about 55 years of age He is a graduate of Princeton college and a lawyer by profession When a young man he made Louisiana his home and embarked in the sugar planting industry. He followed this business until the beginning of the war, when he enlisted in the Confederate army and saw a great deal of active service Gallant conduct on the field won for him the epaulets of a brigadier general. After the war General Thomas attempted to resume sugar planting on a profitable scale, but the war had dealt the business such a blow that his venture was a failure.

He then became a professor in the University of Louisiana at Baton Ronge and during President Cleveland's first administration was appointed a coiner at the mint at New Orleans. He held this position for a time after the inauguration of President Harrison and then entered into business arrangements which took him to Florida.

This business proved uncongenial to General Thomas, and when President Cleveland entered upon his second term Thomas applied for an office and was appointed consul at La Guayra on his record as a coiner in the New Orleans mint. He made a study of the Venezuelan people and their institutions, and when the Hon. Seneca Hazelton was compelled to resign as minister to Venezuela, owing to the charges of Admiral Meade, General Thomas applied for the vacant place. His salary as consul was $1,500 and his promotion raised his income to $7,500.

MRS, TRAILL AND HER YOUNG FRIENDS, fourth year, but she still enjoys a clear, and is almost as fond of literary labor as she was three-quarters of a century ago. She was born in Kent, England, and belongs to a family famous for authorship. Her sisters Agnes and Elizabeth Strickland were the authors of that famous work, "The Lives of the Queens of England," and at the death of Agnes the copyright of the book passed into her possession.

The Stricklands were also people of note in the north of England for centuries, and Catharine Parr, the sixth and last wife of Henry VIII, was a member of the family, it is said. Catharine Parr Strickland Traill was named after this queen. She lived for some time at Reydon Hall, a fine old Elizabethan mansion near Wangford, the title deed of which dates back to Edward VI. The hall was ivy clad and had numerous secret passageways and several alleged ghosts. Her father knew many of the prominent authors and scientists of the day, and Catharine's literary tendencies became apparent at a very early age. Her father died in 1818, and she was cared for by her sisters Elizabeth and Agnes and later by a guardian, who happened one day to read a manuscript she had written. It was called "The Blind Highland Piper and Other Tales." The stories pleased him so well that he showed them to a London publisher, who gave her 5 guineas for them and brought them out in book form in 1819. Book followed book, and one of her HUSBAND AND WIFE,

The Difference Between the Two When a Quarrel Is In Progress.

The difference between a man and a woman is never quite as clearly defined as when they quarrel. No matter how many hundred times she has seen fit to forgive his derelictions, if he once imagines he has a grievance, then the mountains are as putty in comparison with his immovability. The past is all forgotten, No matter how good she may have been to him or how actually right she is in the present instance, he is going to assume a highly judicial air that no amount of pleading can alter until he gets good and

The yielding, loving woman who over-looks a man's faults and exaggerates his virtues stands no sort of chance when the high and mighty lord and master takes it into his head to be indignant. The one mistake she has made, the one azgravating circumstance she has been the cause of creating, blots out all thoughts and memories of the hours, minutes and seconds when she has slaved for him, sacrificed her own comfort many a time in order to add to his enjoyment and counting no trouble great if he but repays her with a amile.

The love of a wife for a husband after they have journeyed together from the sentimental honeymoon to the prosaic realities of matrimony is more that of a mother for a child, and with this feeling firmly implanted in her breast she is much more willing to condone offenses and wipe out bitter remembrances than he who thinks that his ways are always of right and wis-We trust that many a husband will read these lines, and we are talking to them this morning, and we hope that the wives and mothers who are anxious to stir up sluggish consciences will just mark this sermon and leave it lying about where masculine eyes are likely to rest upon it.

There is no fear of trouble resulting, for if we do stir up a hornets' nest the sole cause of the disturbance will be too far out of reach to ninke it worth quarreling about.—Philadelphia Times.

Curious Bank of England Notes

No note, out of the 50,000 or 60,000 now issued daily, is ever issued twice. If, as a depositor, you should draw any amount in notes at the bank and pay them back into your account ton minutes afterward, they would be canceled. So also any other notes received by you from any other bank in London are always new ones, crisp from the Bank of England presses of the day before. The signature is cut off immediately a note is paid in, and the cancellation department proceeds to file them in their regular order, taking notice and keeping account of all notes is a £25 note which was paid in after being out for 111 years. The bank note 11brary is also here, with albums containing old bank notes of various large amounts, with the names of the noblemen for whom they were issued. There is also the £1,-000,000 bank note, a bit of paper which, in its day, was worth $5,000,000 and was issued for convenience in closing an undertaking of unusual moment. ords of this department are of invaluable assistance in checking forgery, and the enneeled notes, which are kept for a period of about five years before being burned, are constantly under examination by Scotland Yard detectives in search of stolen money or other people whose notes have the strange stories of singl notes which this department can furnish are many and are ready made plots for any number of remances, but they are too numerous to be told in this article.-Mo-Cluro's Magazine.

Fire Marshal Whitcomb has been protty busy taking testimony in regard to fires lately, and while speaking about examining witnesses the other day he mentioned several curious things he had noticed. He says that in every case where he has discovered a pyromaniae he has his suspicions of the person's guilt aroused by a peculiar smile which plays around the corners of the mouth of the guilty one when under examination. It is hardly a smile, rather a peculiar puckering of the corners of the mouth, an expression almost indefinable. but it seems to mean, "Well, I'm too smart for you to catch me, anyhow." The marshal says be can recall a dozen cases where he noticed this smile, and at the time had no other cause to suspect a witness, yet by following these smiling ones he has obtained the most convincing testimony of their guilt and almost invariably confession from the guilty ones themselves. - Boston Transcript.

A Kurdish Tent.

The tents of the Kurds, in which they seek the pasturage of the mountains in summer, vary much in size, though in appearance and shape they conform throughout to one plan. The covering of the tents consists of long, narrow strips of black goat's hair material sewed together lengthways. Along the center of the tent this roofing is supported on three to five poles, according to the size, and stretched out by ropes which, made fast to the edge of the roofing, are pegged securely to the ground. The poles within the tent, being of some height, usually 8 to 10 feet, the edge of the tenting does not nearly reach the ground, but walls are formed of matting of reeds, held together by black goat's hair thread, which is often so arranged as to form patterns on the yellow mats.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A pretty little screen for filling an odd corner in winter and for standing before the grate in summer is made of scrolly fronwork, as far as the stand is concerned, but in the middle of this is hung an oblong plece of satin de luxe. This is handsomely embroidered and tied to the crossbar which supports it with brightly colored ribbon. Such a stand is practically everlasting, and it is easy to contrive several panels of different styles, which can be tied on when

We judge by what he has done in the past and we know that he has met with almost uniform success, curing cases of long standing, incorrect treatment at the hands of professedly able practitioners. He has made his visits regularly for years, and no complaint has been made of his treatment, on the contrary those who have been treated by him are his warmest admirers. In fact Dr. Brewer is an educated, far seeing, shrewd practitioner and withal a gentleman in the best sense of the word. We can cheerfully commend

HISTORY OF A WEEK. ARBITRATION WINS.

SETTLED.

Withdrawn from Her Former Hostite Attitude-New Commission May Be Appointed.

Aside from the leisurely manner in which the Venezuelan commission is arranging to prosecute its work there are other indications that the administration has become convinced that this august body will not have the honor of settling the great boundeary dispute, says a Washington special.

While it cannot be stated positively that this belief is based entirely upon any specific reports from Ambassador Bayard upon the subject, yet there is reason to believe some assurances of a satisfactory nature have come to the state department that the matter will be terminated shortly, probably within two mouths, or before a report reasonably can be expected from the Venezuelan commission, upon lines that will be unobjectionable to this government.

While details of the arrangements are not obtainable and perhaps have not yet been fixed, it is believed that the basis of it will be arbitration as proposed originally by the United States, but with a limitation that will suffice at least to save British pride and appear to maintain British consistency. This is likely to be found in an agreement between Great Britain and Venezuela directly, brought about through the good offices of a third party, not necessarily nor probably the United States, to submit to a joint commission the question of the title to all territory west of the Schomburgk line, with a proviso that if in the course of the inquiry evidence appears to touch the British title to the lands lying to the eastward of that line, then the body may extend its functions to adjudicate such title.

This arrangement would meet the British contention that the original arbitration shall be limited to lands to the westward of the line, while still conceding the justice of the contention of President Cleveland that the lands on the other side may properly be taken into consideration in fixing the bound-

Possibly a supplementary arbitration will deal with the question as to the title of the eastward lands, if the original commission dealing with the matter shall find that the title to the lands is a fit subject for arbitration as shown by the evidence produced before it.

WASHINGTON.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE LIVTH CONGRESS.

A Brief Report of the Doings in Upper and Lower Bouses of the National Legislature - The Work of a Week Condensed.

Thirty-first Session.

Senator Milis' speech on finance, with frequent direct criticisms of the President and secretary of the treasury, was the main feature of the senate.

Mr. Mills showed the contractions and expansions of the circulation made by the banks and said this system was now to be perpetuated by further issues of bonds. Whenever the verdict of the people had been taken it had been in favor of the legal-tender notes. The people had always stood against bonds and bank circulation. He differed with the president on this subject and he regretted it. But this was a country of free discussion, and the difference with the president and the secretary of the treasury existed in spite of high personal regard for them. The president wanted more bonds, adding to the people's burden and imposing this burden on our children and our children's chil-dropped from the rolls and said that if the pension office continued its present policy the government might soon have a surplus saved from pension payments. Mr. Dovener (Rep., W. Va.) favored the amendment restoring soldiers to the pension rolls.

The consideration of the silver bond bill proceeded in the senate, Mr. Peffer continuing his speech. As yet no suggestion has been made as to bringing the measure to a vote.

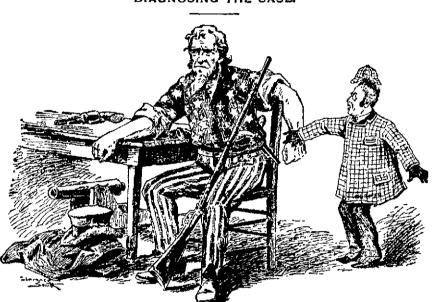

Foreign questions received attention during the day. Mr. Hale spoke for an hour in favor of a Pacific cable connecting the United States and Hawaii. The senator expressed the opinion that the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States is certain to be accomplished at an early day.

The Cuban question was briefly discussed in connection with Mr. Call's resolution calling on the state department for information on the status of the uprising.

The Monroe doctrine also received attention in a resolution by Mr. Sewell of New Jersey, declaring the limitations of the doctrine and stating that President Cleveland's attitude was an extension of the doctrine beyond its original scope.

A resolution was adopted asking the state department for further information on Turkish-Armenian affairs. At London Chronicle.

Mr. Gray asked if Mr. Mills believed in notes which were never redeemed in short in fiat money.

Mr. Mills rejected the idea that legaltender notes were flat and explained the theory of flat money. If the secretary of the treasury had coined the silver in the treasury and paid it for current expenses, there would have been no deficit. The president's bond issues were futile. It was like nouring water through a sieve. The $100,000,000 issue a few days hence would be followed by another $100,000,000 in a few months. This bank power threatened to wield a controlling power in the senate, the house of representatives, the nor democratic party adopt a platform executive branches and the United and nominate candidates positively States Supreme Court, This last branch [had grown so powerful that it could almost decree monarchy in the United States. That would be no more absurd than the decision against the income tax overruling the decisions of a hundred years. The senator closed with a strong expression of his purpose to at all times resist the growing influence of the bank

The silver bond bill was taken up at 2 o'clock, and Mr. Peffer (Pop., Kan.) addressed the senate. He said the speech of Mr. Mills had at least justified the Populist party. Mr. Peffer urged in particular the repeal of all laws authorizing the issuing of bonds. He yielded the floor to permit Mr. Pugh (Dem., Ala.) to offer a resolution similar in text historically known as the "Stanley Matthews resolution" for the payment of government obligations in comer coingold or silver. Mr. Pugh gave notice that he would ask a vote on this resolution on Monday.

Resuming, Mr. Poffer said the Populist party would properly arrange the parity of the metals when it came in power, and he thought that time was close at hand. The senator said the bond policy of the president was little eise than a "great public crime." On motion of Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Col.) the senate agreed that the adjournment would be until Monday. At 4:15 the senate went into executive session and at 4:25 p. m. adjourned.

Another day was used by the house in oratory upon the pension appropriation bill. The most notable incident of the debate was the attack made by Mt. Grow (Pa.) upon what he termed the extraordinary attempt by the president and his clerks to encroach upon the prerogatives of the legislative branch of the government.

Thirty-second Session.

There was an interesting episode in the house Thursday, inspired by Mr. Grow (Rep., Pa.), who declared that the New York chamber of commerce in a pamphlet printed by that body had east reflections upon the good faith of the house. The pamphlet criticised the house for not paying Canadian scalers the $400,000 it was asserted had been arbitrated and awarded the owners of the seized vessels. Mr. Grow demanded to be allowed to speak upon it, as a question of privilege, but Mr. Crisp (Dem., Ga.) made the point that the pamphlet presented no question of privilege. The speaker ruled that no question of privilege was presented, whereupon Mr. Grow took his seat. The house then resumed the considerations of the pension bill, and an order was adopted that general debate be closed.

ard money of the United States.

Havana, Jan. 17.-There is considerable excited comment over the wording of an editorial article which appeared in the Diaro Della Mariana, containing some sensational statements, and headed "An Unbearable Situation." The article declared frankly, and in defianc€ of the press censor, that the time has come for the government officials to admit that the situation is really serious and entreated the government to change its present policy, and, if necessary, to put more men in the field claiming that the revolution is annihilating the commerce and industries of the island. The Union Constitutional, the Reformist, and the Conservative parties have announced that they decline longer to support Martinez de Campos in his policy for the conduct of the campaign against the insurgents or of Cu ban affairs.

Heavy Storm in Oregon.

Fortland, Ore., Jan. 17.-A furious storm raged all along the coast of Oregon and Washington last night. Af Cape Flattery the wind blew fortyeight miles an hour, accompanied by a blinding snow storm. Astoria reported a fierce gale, but all wires went down early in the evening. Throughout western Oregon rain and sleet fell al. day. In southern Oregon the storm was especially severe, causing a heavy slide on the Southern Pacific railroac at the south entrance to tunnel No. 3 in Iowa Creek canyon.

Broke the Tobacco Trust.

St. Louis, Mo., (Special)-Col. Wm. A. Kirchhoff, general western manager the American Tobacco Co., has startled his numerous friends by stopping the use of tobacco. For years he had smoked twenty strong cigars daily, and a less quantity would leave him nervous and ill. The habit was undermining his health, and he tried to quit, but could not, until he took No-To-Bac, the medical miracle that has cured so many thousands of tobacco-users. Col. Kirchhoff's craving for tobacco has entirely gone, and he feels better than ever before. He is a great No-To-Bac enthusiast now. Over 300,000 bad tobacco-users have been cured by No-To-Bac, and the loss to tobacco manufacturers is easily over $10,000,000 a

ELLEN BEACH YAW A CANDI-DATE FOR HIGH HONORS.

She Hajis from California and Has a Voice That Is the Wonder of Paris-Now in That Metropolis Preparing Under Delle Sedie and Bax.

ATTI may make her farewell tour as soon as she pleases. America has its own native silvery singer and will have the joyous privilege in the future of paying $6 to home talent for a parquette seat. Miss Ellen Beach

Yaw is the name of the new soprano wonder. Her childhood home was in California. She is now in Paris for the better training and polishing of her voice, by Delle Sedie and Bax. Miss Yaw's voice has the widest range of any soprano of whom history has preserved a record. Mozart noted a vocal phenomenon in Lucrezia Ajugari, whom he heard in 1770 sing from A below middle C to C above high C, covering twenty-four notes. The California singer begins at G below the staff and stops at E in the altissimo-a range of nearly four octaves, three notes higher than Ajugari's. F sharp, which was the gifted Nilsson's ultimate tone, is sustained by Miss Yaw without apparent effort, and she can sound the sixth note higher, which is also an altitude of five notes higher than Patti dare attempt. Miss Yaw has not yet given her voice to the public, but will make her debut soon. Her repertory embrades the works of English, French, Italian and Swedish composers. Of Grieg's ballads she is particularly fond, Foreign musicians and critics who have heard her predict such a career for her as has never been known. Of her personal appearance and characteristics one writer says: "She is tall and beautiful, with a wealth of blonde hair, dreamy blue eyes, and features of the finest delicacy. Her throat is as graceful as a swan's, her poise and manner are elegant. She reminds one of Jenny Lind, in that affectation and artifice have no place in her expression."

GREAT SKATER

Graceful John Sandblom, of Chicago. Late of Sweden.

John Sandblom, a native of Sweden, now a resident of Chicago, bears the distinction of possessing a large and beautiful silver cup which was personally presented to him by King Oscar of Sweden, who had seen and been charmed with his graceful skating. Sandblom does not spend his time in Chicago as a professional skater, although he has had many tempting offers to do such, but is following mercantile pursuits with an ambition to become some day a representative business man. Sandblom was born in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1872, and began skating before 10 years of age. To the native of Norway and Sweden skating comes almost as naturally as eating; but this young beginner made more than rapid development on the ice. At 14 years of age he won a first prize in a fancy-skating contest at Stockholm. and took many prizes throughout Sweden between the ages of 14 and 20. At Stockholm in 1892 he took first prize and the championship of all Sweden as a fancy skater, and it was here that King Oscar was so highly pleased with his feats that he ordered a silver cup specially made for the young skater. The same winter Sandblom met and defeated at Orebro all the "cracks" of Europe, winning a valuable medal. Sandblom came to Chicago in 1893.

He has been a victim of dyspepsis which took the form of continuous constipation, and, strangely enough, his mother suffered from the same trouble. Mr. Owens testified to the merits of Pink Pills in a most enthusiastic way, and said to the Enquirer reporter:

"I am glad to say anything I can for Dr.
Williams' Pink Pills, because they did me great good, and other people ought to know great good, and other people ought to know of their virtues as a medicine in stomach troubles. It was some time ago when I feit a heavy feeling in my stomach, and I grew very constipated. I did not consult a doctor, but having heard of the Pink Pills I bought a box of them. In two or three days the heavy feeling in my stomach disappeared and my bowels were regular. I did not have to use more than a box of did not have to use more than a box of them before I was well. Since that time I them before I was well. Since that time I have only occasionally been troubled with constipation, and I never get worried, because I know just what to do. Mother was also troubled with indigestion and the Pink Pills did the same for her they did for me—cured her, didn't they, mother."

When appealed to Mrs. Owens answered: "That is right. I found it was a great medicine so eavy to take and so only and medicine, so easy to take and so quick and lasting in its results." Mr. Owens continued: "I believe that these pills are also good for nervousness. When I had my stomach trouble I was also quite nervous and that disappeared with the dyspepsia. The Pink Pills were all that

The first prize will be given to the person who constructs the shortest sentence, in English, containing all the letters in the alphabet. The other prizes will go in regular order to those competitors whose sentences stand next in point of brevity.

CONDITIONS.

The length of a sentence is to be measured by the number of letters it contains, and each contestant must indicate by figures at the close of his sentence just how long it is. The sentence must have some meaning. Geographical names and names of persons cannot be used. The contest closes February 15th, 1896, and the results will be published one week later. In case two or more prize-winning sentences are equally short the one first received will be given preference. Every competitor whose sentence is less than 116 letters in length will receive Wilkie Callins' works in paper cover, including twelve complete novels, whether he wins a prize or not. No contestant can enter more than one sentence nor combine with other competitors. Residents of Omaha are not permitted to take any part, directly or indirectly, in this contest.

This remarkably liberal offer is made by the WERKLY WORLD-HERALD, of which the distinguished ex-congressman, WILLIAM J. BRYAN, is Editor, dignantly; "she's not 'some of them.' She wouldn't accept the help of a traitor, much less ask for it."

He was becoming irritated beyond his self-control, and Mr. Wickerby hastened to leave this part of the subject. "The question now is," he remarked,

'what you are to do."
"Do!" cried Dick. "I shall write to Colonel de Montaut at once, and call tomorrow morning to explain the mis-

Dick looked nervous and sulky, but said nothing, and Mr. Wickerby went on in a clear, precise tone, marking off the points on the fingers of his left hand as he proceeded;

"On Saturday, March 24, 1821, he leaves home at 10:00 in the morning. Immediately afterward a letter from his Imperialist friend arrives, referring to previous conversations, and asking him to join in a treasonable plot. A refusal is to be easly implied by mere silence, but the consent, which is plainly expected, is to be evidenced by attendance at 11 o'clock at a certain place for the purpose of meeting two fellow-conspira-

"At 11 o'clock he is at the place named -for quite a different purpose, he says, but admittedly at the invitation of these same Bonapartists. The other conspirators are there too, and a cordial introduction takes place. His conduct does not appear to have aroused any doubt in their minds as to his acceptance of their overtures.

"Confronted with this array of facts, our friend proposes to put himself right by explaining matters to the Bonapartists and even to commit the imprudence of expressing his regrets on paper. 'Litera scripta manet.' My dear Estcourt, no prudent man ever writes a letter when he can avoid it. Your disappointed friends would have you in a trap here. You'd much better run away guletly, and take a holiday somewhere without leaving your address. When they've come to grief and got hanged for their pains-"

"What the devil do you mean?" shouted Dick, in exasperation.

"Then you can come back in safety," continued Mr. Wickerby. Bourget Praises Vankee Women.

What, then, has M. Bourget to say of the American woman? Bourget's language on the subject is so magnificent that we should write him down a romanticist pure and simple were it not that, in the the course of his analysis, he shows us another side of the picture. The purity of the American girl, the author of "Le Disciple" tells us, is not to be questioned. She is coquettish as well as calculating, and as frankly mercenary on occasion as she is naively self-centered. Clearly, it is the individualism of the American woman that surprises the critics of the Latin race, for north erners have little difficulty in understanding a nature which seeks its interest as much in globe trotting and selfculture-or shall we call it self-advancement?-as in mere ebuiltions of passion or sentiment.

Mr. Morgan frequently addressed himself personally to Mr. Sherman, who sat across the aisle, and for two hours arraigned the Ohio senator for the series of finencial acts with which he is identified. At times Mr. Morgan was bitterly personal.

There are fifteen other churches, nine of which belong to the monastic orders. Two of these churches date from the sixteenth century. The public edifices of note are the palace of the captain general, situated on Plaza de Armas; the Tacon theater, one of the largest theaters in the world, equal, in fact, to the famous Scala of Milan; the various provincial offices, the university and the great prison, a vast quadrangular structure, built in 1771. There are also a number of fine hospitals. Few cities have such beautiful parks and driveways as Havana. The great Plaza de Armas is the chief. It comprises four parks, in the center of which is a statue of Ferdinand VII. Then there is the Alameda de Paula, bordering on the bay, and the Campo de Marte, used as a drill ground for the military. This is an

A Great Paper. The Ram's Horn, that greatest of all religious weeklies, has just entered upon the third year of its useful career. It is safe to say that no other religious paper has attained such widespread popularity. It is read from Maine to Mexico and also in Canada. Not only that, but it is probably the most widely quoted paper in existence. Its Figs and Thistles paragraphs are worthy of special commendation. Its colored cartoons, by Frank Beard, are very effective. Its columns are quite free from denominational rancor and it, therefore, offends nobody. It is a good paper for earnest Christians, better for indifferent ones and better still for non-Christians. Its main office is in the Association building, Chicago.

time been set apart from other funds. The secretary states that this had never been done, there being no provision of law authorizing it.

Mr. Mitchell (Rep., Ore.) had passed a bill allowing settlers on forfeited railroad grants to hold land by fencing and improving it, and making actual residence unnecessary. At 2 o'clock Mr. Morgan took the floor on the silver bond bill. He referred to the intrigues before a national convention, and "the wind-shaken platform" of these bodies. In his judgment the emergency tariff and bond bills were constructed merely as a part of the platform to be laid before a national convention next summer and not with any purpose to enact them as laws. Mr. Morgan criticised the financial course of Mr. Sherman. He referred to him as "the Napoleon of finance who is rapidly nearing his Waterloo and his exile at St. Helena." Mr. Morgan enumerated in detail the financial burdens which the legislation urged by the Ohio senator had imposed on the people. They were evils which brought misery, want and calamity to the whole people. It had worked more miseries than those pictured in the apocalypse. His (Mr. Sherman's) garment was one of many colors, in keening with the variegated lines of the party to which he belonged. At the present time the Ohio senator and the president were together on their financial views, both equally obvious to the constitutional requirement that the metals were to be on equal terms. It was the Ohio senator who originated the evil of selling bonds to a syndicate. Proceeding, Mr. Morgan said:

"The senator from Obio is the author of five new measures of finance that have given the people and the government more trouble in handling the little remnant of $346,000,000 of greenbacks than it did to pay $12,000,000,000 of annual expenditures for the support of the government and more than $3,000,000,000 of principal and interest of the national debt that we have raised in the last thirty years. These measures are the demonetization of silver in 1873, the sequestration of the gold reserve in the treasury in 1878, the power given the secretary of the treasury in 1890 to preserve the parity between the metals, the power to sell bonds at private sale, and the power to enable private persons by contract to dispense with the legal tender laws in their transactions."

HAVANA HAS A HISTORY. Cuba's Capital. Now Beleaguered by In-

Havana, as the capital, metropolis and chief seaport of Cuba, is one of the best known cities in the American hemisphere. Its splendid harbor, its commercial importance, its climate and the tinge of romance that ever attaches to its people have made its fame worldwide. Havana has about 200,000 inhabitants. It was founded but twenty-quiry presented by Mr. Peffer as to | gates, named respectively Colon, Cortez, whether $100,000,000 in gold had at any | Pizarro and Tacon. The Paseo de Tacon is a magnificent drive with double rows of trees. It has numerous columns and statues, among the latter one of Charles III, ranking among the finest works of art in America. The commerce of Havana is only surpassed in the new world by that of New York. Two-thirds of the products of Cuba find outlet through Havana. The exports of sugar alone are annually about 120,000,000 pounds. Havana was founded in 1515 by Diego de Velasquez, the conqueror of the island. It was first called San Christobal de la Habana, in honor of Columbus, but gradually the prefix was dropped. Havana has been frequently attacked from the sea. Drake tried to take it in 1585, but failed. In 1762 a British fleet under Admiral Pocock bombarded the city and compelled it to capitulate, but it was restored to the Spaniard the next year by the treaty of Paris.

"Who'll take it as it is?" the auctioneer continued. "What am I offered? One dollar? Sold to the same lady for $1"" "Isn't it strange," he added, 'that some

Wanted a Boss.

West Virginia, the Mountain State, is full of interesting characters. Back of the rather aristocratic little town of Philippi are fastnesses not yet disturbed by the onward march of civilization. A well known politician was canvassing through that section for votes, when he came to a cabin where a young woman was holding a man on the ground by his ears.

"Done get enough?" she asked
"I give it up," he said Then the girl released the man, who went away, looking very much abashed.

Split a Rock.

Among the hills of old Berkshire is a noble birch tree, gigantic in trunk and limb and abundant in foliage, which towers above its neighboring companions, but grows, apparently, out of an immense granite bowlder. Here, one might think, It would have paused, submitting to the adamanting pressure, either crushed atterly to the earth or dwarfed and deformed by its unyielding environment. But it had the irresistible evolutionary forces of nature behind it. The sunlight above wooed it from its prison house; it pushed upward toward the light. Gradually the little crovice in the rock was widened, the great bowlder was split asunder as by the hammer of Thor-the noble tree was scarcely distorted by the struggle, protectod from destructive storms by its conquered enemy.-Boston Transcript.

DEATH OF CARL JONAS.

Ex Lleut. Gov. Carl Jonas, of Racine, and consul to Crefeld, Germany, died at the latter place last Wednesday afternoon. Brain trouble is supposed to have been the cause. Carl Jonas was Lieut. Gov. during both the Peck administrations, and during his last term was appointed consul to St. Petersburg. The climate there was too severe for his health, and his resignation and change to Crefeld followed. Carl Jonas was born at Malesow, Bohemia, Oct. 30, 1840, and was educated in his native country. In 1860 he was banished by the Austrian authorities for having written an article on the school question that displeased them. The next three years were spent in London, and since 1863 he had been editor of the Slavie, a Bohemian paper published at Racine. He was looked upon as the leader of the Bohemians in America, he was the soul of their social and benevolent organizations, and his name among them was a synonym of respectability and integrity. He was prominently identified with the so-called C. S. P. Fiction Stranger Than Truth.

There is now living at Plymouth an old man, named William Lawson, who has had a romarkable career Montion is made of the fact that he is the father of the Captain Lawson who wrote a very successful book, some years ago published by Chap-man & Hall, entitled "Wanderings In New Guinca." This book had a remarkable history.

It was really a skit on Stanley's "Travels In Africa," the secondary idea of the author being that it would serve as an interesting book of adventure for boys There was bardly a spot in the civilized world from which Captain Lawson dld not receive congratulations upon his work, People took it quite seriously. Among others Professor Goldsmidt of Berlin wrote for extracts Dr Ferrara, who accompanied the Prince of Wales in India, asked to be allowed to use an extract from it, containing an account of a tiger fight, for publi-cation in one of his own books Sir John Lubbock, who was at the head of the Royal society at the time, wrote to him and asked him to go to London and give a lecture on his travels. None of these eminent people was aware that what Captain Lawson had written was, in fact, a very fine work of fletion, and that he knew no more from personal experience about New Guinea than they did thomselves .- Western Week-

Care of the Feet.

The skill of the pedicure is now called into requisition nearly as often as that of the manicure. Many persons have their feet carefully and systematically looked after and the mails of their toes as nicely kept as the nails of their fingers. The visiting pedicure is a distinct profession in the large cities. Unquestionably the care of the feet has much to do with their condition as regards comfort and service. Tender feet can be somewhat hardened and rendered less susceptible by bathing them every morning in tepid, not hot, water into which a teaspoonful of eau de cologne has been put. The occasional parboiling in almost scalding water, which is still a provincial practice for the softening of corns and other excrescences, is barmful and increases in the end the very troubles for which it seems a temporary relief .- New York Times.

It is now known that the Liver is the most important as well as the largest organ in the body. The Liver transforms digested food into pure, rich blood.

The Liver acts as a filter, removing all impurities from the blood.

The Liver secretes bile, which assists in digestion, destroys disease germs, removes all waste and poisonous matter from the system through the bowels.

Liver diseases are causes by over-eating, improper food, alcoholic drinks, exposure, or it is inherited.

When the Liver becomes affected, all the organs and tissues of the body suffer, a general lassitude, weakness and dizziness follows; headache becomes frequent, the bowels constipated, impure matter is absorbed, and waste tissues retained in the blood. The blood rapidly becomes impure; pimples, boils and sal-

Dr. Cyrus Hamilin Established Robert Celloge at Constantinople In the Pass of Great Opposition-How Admirel Farragut's Warships Impressed the Sultan.

The fact does not seem to be generally recognized that the deplorable condition of affairs in the land of the sultan is of more than casual interest to Americans. That we have missionaries in that blood soaked land and that these missionaries have been in mortal danger is generally recognized, but that these men and women who are threatened with death at the hands of the cruel Kurds and Turks who have already made the blood of the nations run cold with horror have done more to spread enlightened ideas through that dark empire than the representatives of any other Christian nation does not seem to have been fully realized. It is a fact, however.

the millions of people under the rule of the sultan they found were Mohammedans, who looked upon all others as infidels and best converted to the true faith by the sword. They found that while legally any person was entitled to change his religious belief, practically he could do no such thing; that the Turk who renounced the faith of the prophet at once became a social outcast and a subject for the most fauntical and that the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Hamlin looked upon when he went there early in the fifties. To attempt to teach those people a new religion was purely out of the question. The way for that must first be prepared by educating them. Like barbarians, they must first be civilized and Christianized afterward. With money furnished by Christopher Robert, wealthy New York merchant, and with $30,000 of his own, Dr. Hamlin endeavored to establish a college, but such was the strength of the prejudice of the Turkish government that for eight years he labored in vain.

At last Admiral Farragut sailed into the Bosporus with three big men-of-war and went ashore to pay his respects to the porte. Dr. Hamlin told Farragut of the obstacles that had been thrown in his way, and the admiral said that he would see what he could do for him. The sultan looked at the big ships which floated the stars and stripes under his palace windows, and he was much impressed. He invited the American admiral to a grand banquet in the palace of the grand vizier. During the course of the entertainment Farragut

CHINESE SUPERSTITIONS.

Some of the Columbials' Queer Ideas on the Subject of Medicines.

Among the many singular superstitions of the Chinese people is one which corresponds closely to the minumal of the Hindus, a belief that western physicians use the eyes, brains and hearts of infants in the concection of their medicines and of those magical potions which are to be used in the fullness of time to kill off the inhabitants of China preparatory to the confiscation of their land. This absurd belief probably originated from their own practices in this direction. The Chinese, as their lawbooks show, are firm believers in witchcraft by spells and drugs, and those parts of the human frame which we have mentioned are frequently employed by them in the way of medicines, a practice, by the way, not unknown in our own country, even in the eightoenth century.

One of the great works of the Sisters of Mercy attached to the French Catholic mission was the saving of infant life. Fe-male babies in China are held in very poor estimation and are traquently thrown out to die or given away to any persons so misguided as to decire the possession of them. The object of the sisters was in every way commendable. They sought to vent a deplorable waste of or if their care could not avail to save the poor little wasted bodies they sought at least to save their souls. They gathered into their infant asylums all the children they could find. It was proved that their methods were not always beyond reproach, but the end, they argued, justified any means. The deaths were very numerous, not unnaturally, considering the neglected condition of the children when received.

A rumor spread that the foreign devils were employing professional kidnapers to obtain infants for the sake of their eyes, hearts and brains. The educated classes are, in all that pertains to physiological knowledge, as ignorant and as supersti-tious as the common people. The popular rage broke out, some bodies which were exhumed seemed to afford confirmation of the charges, the official classes and the scoret societies fanned the flame, and the result was that every French man and woman in Tion-tein was killed and all the property belonging to them and to their mission destroyed. The nuns were subjected to foul outrage after death and their bodies thrown into the Peiho river .- Macmillan's Magazine.

HOW ANCIENTS MADE GLASS.

Theban Workmen Were Experts In the Business Many Ages Ago.

The glass blowers of ancient Thebes are known to have been as proficient in that particular art as is the most scientific craftsman of the same trade of the present day after a lapse of 40 centuries of so called "progress." They were well ac-quainted with the art of staining glass and are known to have produced that commodity in great profusion and perfection. Rosselini gives an illustration of a piece of stained glass known to be 4,000 years old, both in tipt and design. In this case the color is struck through the vitrified structure, and he mentions designs struck entirely in pieces from a half inch to threequarters of an inch thick, the color being perfectly incorporated with the structure of the place and exactly the same on both the obverse and reverse sides.

The priests of Ptah at Memphis were adents in the glassmaker's art, and not only did they have factories for manufacturing the common crystal variety, but they had learned the vitrifying of the different colors and the imitation of precious stones to perfection. Their imitations of the amethyst and of the various other colored gems were so true to nature that even now, after they have lain in the desert sands from 2,000 to 4,000 years, it takes an expert to distinguish the genuine artiale from the spurious. It has been shown that, besides being experts in glassmaking and glass coloring, they used the diamond in cutting and engraving glass. In the British museum there is a beautiful blece of stained glass, with an engraved emblazonment of the monarch Thothmes III, who lived 8,400 years ago.—Jewelers' Cir-

Do Stones Grow? No, They Don't. A builder employed on the work of re pairing a church, a well known and trusted man at Dunstable, and old enough to talk and think sensibly, declared to me that the kind of stone (pudding stone) in question grows, and that this particular mass had grown since it was used as a foundation stone, as proved by its projection both ways beyond the thickness of the wall. Nothing I could say about the absence of "vitality" or the impossibility of an isolated mass removed from all opportunity of growth by accretion of first material could shake his belief that the mass had grown in size. Surely his opinion could not find support in his experience. It would be well to inquire if this be a popular belief in this county.-Notes and Operios.

She was a shrinking, timid blond girl, in the first fluttering springtime of her first engagement. She had been wood and won by a stalwart young dry goods plerk. He, with the complacence of a man who had looked bolts of dress goods and rolls of gorgeous calloos full in the face for years, had bent his baughty gaze on a ners one day. And the fluttering blond girl was happy, for now she was carrying the portrait of her lover with her wherever she went.

Although riches was a small matter under the circumstances, she thought it wise to have a little pin money of her own, and she had begun to put money in the savings

The other day she tripped into the par-ticular bank she patronized, her bankbook and several other little things in her hands, including the last paper back novel and a few patterns of velveteen. Several people were crowded around the cashler's window, but as they were all men, and she was pretty, they allowed her to get to the window first. "How much?" asked the cashier briskly

-indeed rather too briskly for strict politeness. "Three dollars," she answered, trying not to blush, as she saw that a redbeaded man was taking a warm personal interest in her affairs. "Three dollars? All right," said the tashier. He gathered in the three bills and the bankbook in its envelope with a flourish, sloshing around as estentationaly as a butcher selling a chuck steak. As he pulled the book from the envelope there was a heartless grin on his hitherto blank face, and he rasped out to the shrinking blond: "I beg your pardon. This ain't the book."

The eashier was holding up, for the gaze of the redheaded man and others, the portrait of the man to whom the blond had given her beart. She had slipped the portrait into the big envelope to keep it from the profane gaze of the world and had handed it to that eachier by mistake. The blond is thinking of retiring to a convent, and the haughty young man at the dry goods store, innocent of what has abashed his flancee, is spending all his salary on flowers and theater tickets in the endeavor to overcome her settled melansholy.-New York Press.

The Quadrille.

The Beetle and the Grasshopper.

A beetle and a grasshopper met in a path one day, and, although there was plenty of room for both, neither would turn aside. "Come, now, but why don't you give

The Princess of Wales, to the great discomfort of whoever may be acting as the maid in waiting, never puts herself at case in traveling. Hour after hour she retains a bolt upright position, and never thinks of removing her bonnet or lying down. She attributes the habit to her rigid bringing up, and in speaking of it recently said to a friend, "We were never allowed to lie down during the daytime when we were children for fear of making ourselves untidy, and I am so accustomed to the habit now that I should never dream of removing my bonnet while on a journey."

Women and Humanity.

If woman's nature is expressed and conditioned by wifehood and womanhood, then woman's part in goodness and spirituality, which is the perfection of goodnoss, is not for man alone, as man selfishly would have it, but for humanity. Woman's experience and culture in worldliness or actual contact, like man, with all being and aspiration, are but means of expres-sion of her nature to do most for the goodness and spirituality of humanity.-Boston Globe.

Miss Louise Stockton.

Miss Louise Stockton is well known in literary circles, not only because she is the sister of "Rudder Grange's" author, but for her own work in current periodicals. Among her intimate friends Miss Stockton is always called Lulu and is admired with a sort of wonder by those who remember her delicate health in girlhood and see what she has been enabled to accomplish since then. Her first essay in the field of literature was in the form of a
